

Anya Lefler

Piano, Music Theory

Grew up in a culture of intertwined sounds of Kazakh folk string instrument dombra with classical orchestra. Anya is fluent in English & Russian.

Anya has been teaching kids to play piano since 1999. She takes pride in getting along with children while broadening their musical development. Progress over the years brings both Anya and her student immense joy. She shares her passion for piano in a way that's fun and easy to understand for students with various needs and abilities. Interchanging focus on music theory, ear-training, history as well as reading music keeps lessons with Anya exciting yet challenging.

Anya started playing piano at the age of 5, by 7 she was also in the choir, expanding her ear-training along with getting a sense of being part of the whole. A classically trained piano player, she advanced through graduating the National Conservatory of Kazakhstan. That knowledge creates a foundation for the structure of lessons. Every student gets a personalized program based on their preferences, level of musicianship and goals. Whether classical, POP or Jazz, together with Anya you'll learn how to create meaningful music.
