Jonathan Nussman

Voice, Piano, Music Theory

When he's not singing and acting, Jonathan loves making homemade pickles.

Jonathan Nussman has been making music all his life. In addition to singing and acting he plays piano, guitar and ukulele. Originally from North Carolina, Jonathan holds degrees in music from UNC Chapel Hill and The Boston Conservatory and is currently working on a doctoral degree in vocal performance at UC San Diego in close collaboration with Phillip Larson.

Jonathan has appeared as a featured performer with such institutions as Opera Boston, Cape Cod Opera, Guerilla Opera and the Cambridge Symphony Orchestra, and has appeared in performance art installations at Boston's Institute for Contemporary Art. As a teacher, Jonathan has extensive experience working with a variety of ages and voice types in classical, jazz, musical theater and pop. He firmly believes that the fundamentals of classical singing can be applied to any style of vocal music, and can set the singer up for a lifetime of healthy performance.
