Marcelo Lazcano

Guitar, Composition, Theory
and Ear Training

I love french fries, cats, and listening to prog-rock!

I believe in teaching not only guitar, but also theory and ear training. The objective is that students not only learn techniques and songs, but also with these tools they can begin to develop their own musical ideas.

Marcelo was born and raised in Chile, where he began his music studies. He has lived in Israel, where he performed Chilean music with other Chilean musicians as well as writing and performing in his own prog-rock band. In the US he has played with several bands in the L.A. and studied guitar with Jazz virtuoso Rick Zunigar.

Marcelo holds an Associate degree in guitar performance from Musician's Institute, a Bachelor and a Master of music from Cal State Northridge. Currently he is working on finishing a PhD in music composition from UC San Diego.
